WAR'S CONTRASTING FATE, THE WILLIAMSONS AND THE KINGS.

Private William John Williamson Duke of Wellington's (West Riding Regiment)

Sad news came to hand last weekend in a letter from an Army Chaplain in France, of the death from wounds of Private James Stanley Williamson, The Duke of Wellington's Regt, which look place in the 3rd Canadian Hospital on March 17th. He was 23 years of age, and the second son of Mrs. Williamson, 42 Skipton Road, Earby, who has had two other sons killed within twelve months. These were: Private Sydney George Williamson, K.O.Y.L.I. (20), killed April 9th 1917, and Private William James Williamson (29), Duke of Wellington's Regiment, killed October 1st 1917. They were all unmarried.

James enlisted in the early days of the war and had spent nearly three years in France. The family had received a letter from him dated only two days prior to his death, which was due to gunshot wounds in the back and right leg and a fractured arm.

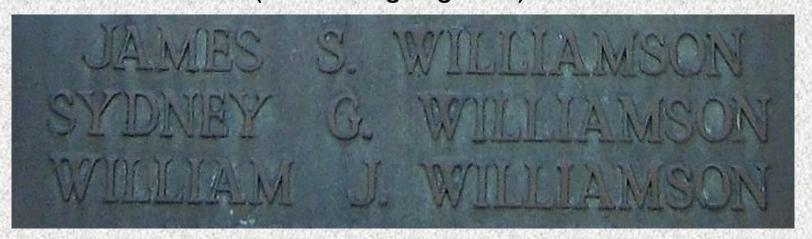

Craven Herald 29th March 1918

Mary Elizabeth Williamson—EARBY WIDOW'S SACRIFICE - Three Sons in 12 Months, a fourth son Frank Robert was too young to join the forces

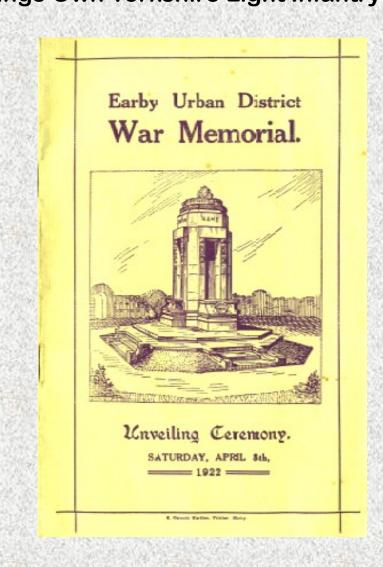

Private James Stanley Williamson
Duke of Wellington's
(West Riding Regiment)

Private Sidney George Williamson Kings Own Yorkshire Light Infantry

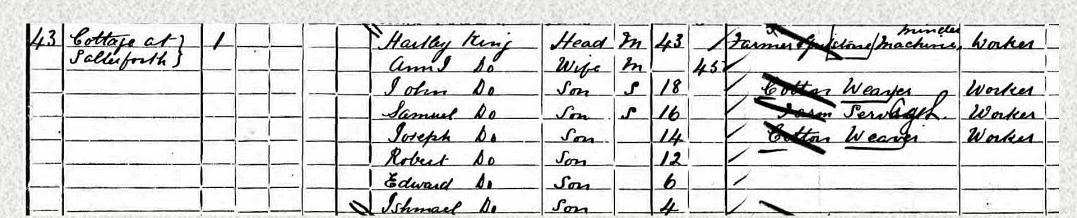

Mary Elizabeth was invited to perform the unveiling of Earby's War Memorial in 1922

The King brothers left to right
Joseph, Ishmael, Sam, Bob, Jack and Tom
A seventh brother, Edward was not fit for active service and stayed at home to run the family farm (Lane Ends) with their father Hartley
In another twist of fate, Ishmael, having survived the war, succumbed to the subsequent influenza pandemic

1901 CENSUS
Tom King had already married Annie Parkinson in 1898 and had left home